R&P is our drama program technical support lab. You will be called upon to contribute in many different ways both creatively and with good, old-fashioned, elbow-grease. The quality, quantity and diversity of your work will help determine your course grade.

Your work on each show will be evaluated in each of the following categories.

  a. Regular R&P - This includes the work you do
     1. on Tuesday-Thursday afternoons as part of your crew.
     2. on special projects (at the discretion of the faculty).

  b. Production R&P - This includes the work you do
     1. as a cast member in a show.
     2. as an AD, lights operator, sound operator, costume coordinator, stage manager, house manager, usher or running crew member.
        • Twelfth Night runs Nov. 10, 11, 12, 17, 18, 19
        • UST Live! runs Dec. 1, 2, 3

  c. Special R&P - This includes the work you do
     1. as a special errand runner.
     2. on Saturday workdays. Oct. 29th and Nov. 5th
     3. at unusual or crunch times.

  d. GRADUATE STUDENTS: will be expected to take on mutually agreed upon production leadership roles.

ALWAYS PUNCH IN AND PUNCH OUT ON THE TIME CLOCK!
This is how we will track your hours.

Personal initiative is always recognized and appreciated and, when you take it, you will more often be able to become involved in work in which you wish to expand your expertise.

Individuals who complete tasks in all of the above areas will doubtless receive the best grades.
For your own reference you can think in terms of completing a minimum of 100 hours divided among the shows and two production jobs in order to achieve a "B".

Everyone should feel free to inquire about his grade at any time.

There are no written exams or textbooks for the R&P class. All R&P students must document familiarity with department safety protocols.

Any student with a documented disability needing accommodations is requested to speak with me as early as possible. All discussions will remain confidential. Students with disabilities will also need to contact Counseling and Disability Services in Crooker Center.
